▲ EUROPE : Premier sommet de la Communauté politique européenne

Comment la relance de l'agression militaire russe contre l'Ukraine co-produit-elle l'émergence d'une Communauté politique européenne le 6 octobre 2022 ?

Le 6 octobre 2022, 44 États liés au sous-continent européen se réunissent à Prague dans le cadre du premier sommet de la Communauté politique européenne (CPE). Cette idée est formulée par Emmanuel Macron le 9 mai 2022 à l'occasion de la journée de l'Europe alors que la France exerçait la présidence tournante du Conseil (des ministres) de l'Union européenne. Elle survient dans le contexte de l'agression russe contre l'Ukraine [...] Le président français E. Macron, lors d'un discours prononcé au premier sommet de la CPE, évoque cette initiative comme « un message d'unité de notre Europe », d'une certaine manière face à la Russie.

The European (Geo)Political Community: more than meets the eye?

Purpose of this initiative remain unanswered. First, it is unclear how the EPC will relate to the EU's enlargement policy and how candidate countries will react if this initiative is perceived as a low-key substitute for lack of progress towards membership.[...] Second, what are the next steps of the EPC? [...] ? Third, it is unclear how the EPC will relate to other EU institutions. [...] Finally, the emergence of the EPC once again brings to the fore the never-ending discussions on differentiated integration and a Europe of concentric circles.

The European Political Community: A Successful Test?

The EPC was envisioned as a forum for dialogue between European nations through a relaxed framework requiring fewer procedural rules and less structure than the European Union or other multilateral organizations such as the OSCE, Council of Europe, or NATO. [...] The first meeting of the EPC did have a number of notable diplomatic achievements and displayed a tremendous amount of symbolic value. First, it facilitated a breakthrough between Armenia and Azerbaijan. [...] Second, the summit could spur a détente between the United Kingdom and France. [...] Thus, the EPC demonstrated that dialogue can be facilitated and achieved in spite of differences between countries.

European Political Community Meets for the First Time

For Poland and other Central European states, the EPC can serve as a platform for further promoting the idea of EU enlargement to Western Balkan states and the Associated Trio. Moreover, the lack of invitation to Russia and Belarus to the summit, while Turkey was invited, shows that most EU states correctly read the most important security challenges in Europe. From the Polish point of view, France's desire to treat the EPC as a platform for building an understanding with the UK on military security issues and with Norway and Azerbaijan on energy issues is also beneficial.

Around the Halls: Assessing the 2022 National Security Strategy
In the past, I have been critical of the administration's tendency to instrumentalize democracy by suggesting that its strength and value hinges on its ability to produce "good" outcomes. As I argue in "The Problem of Democracy", this way of thinking about the democratic idea can easily lead to incoherence.

CNAS Responds: Analyzing the 2022 National Security Strategy

The new National Security Strategy represents a strong, clear statement about America's role in the world. The central geopolitical challenge today is the existence of simultaneous, indefinite competitions with both Russia and China. The NSS admirably diagnoses the nature of those contests and points the way toward success in them. It sets key priorities and emphasizes the need to work with allies and build domestic sources of strength. All good. But there are also missing pieces and complications. The administration continues to lack an affirmative trade agenda, which damages America's ability to compete with China.

FACT SHEET: The Biden-Harris Administration's National Security Strategy

In the early years of this decisive decade, the terms of geopolitical competition will be set while the window of opportunity to deal with shared challenges will narrow. We cannot compete successfully to shape the international order unless we have an affirmative plan to tackle shared challenges, and we cannot do that unless we recognize how heightened competition affects cooperation and act accordingly.

▲ EURASIE : Vladimir Poutine signe la loi d'annexion russe de quatre régions ukrainiennes

Putin Signs Bills to Annex Four Regions of Ukraine

Russian President Vladimir Putin on Wednesday signed legislation to annex four territories of Ukraine, government documents showed. The Donetsk, Lugansk, Kherson, and Zaporizhzhia regions are "accepted into the Russian Federation in accordance with the constitution of the Russian Federation," the documents said. Putin also signed decrees formally appointing the current Moscow-backed heads of the four regions as their acting leaders... The four territories create a crucial land corridor between Russia and the Crimean Peninsula, which was annexed by Moscow in 2014. Together, the five regions make up around 20 percent of Ukraine.

Russia's annexations must not impact global resolve

Russia's moves should be seen as a continued wave of annexation of neighbours' territory. Russia's level of control varies from Abkhazia to Transnistria, to Crimea and Belarus – but this is all part of a pattern to enlarge Russia at the expense of others. Vladimir Putin is on an imperial mission to restore control over what he believes is 'historic Russia'. Each time his regime senses weakness, it emboldens aggression... The intent of the annexations is simple – to change the rules of the war and reverse the course of it, and Ukraine's Kharkiv offensive has made this urgent. As Russian 'constituent republics' and oblasts (regions) these territories are now subject to provisions of Russian military doctrine that justify nuclear use.

Reaction to the annexation: the West announces tougher sanctions against Russia

In response to the annexation of four occupied Ukrainian regions to the Russian Federation and the Kremlin's threats (including the possible use of nuclear weapons), Western countries are extending their sanctions on Russia, or announcing that they will take such action. New restrictions have already been introduced by the United Kingdom, Japan, Canada, Australia and the United States. Washington has expanded its sanctions list to include representatives of Russia's elite and members of their families..., as well as military commanders involved in the war in Ukraine... The sanctions which the West has introduced or announced are still insufficient to the scale of Russia's aggression and violation of international law. They will also have limited consequences for the country and its economy.

Assessing Putin's Implicit Nuclear Threats After Annexation

Putin's annexation speech made several general references to nuclear use that are consistent with his past language on the subject, avoiding making the direct threats that would be highly likely to precede nuclear use... Putin is attempting to force Kyiv to the negotiating table by annexing Russian-occupied territory and threatening nuclear use... Putin's call for negotiations and implicit nuclear threats are aimed at both Ukraine and the West; he likely incorrectly assesses that his nuclear brinkmanship will lead the United States and its allies to pressure Ukraine to negotiate... Putin would likely need to use multiple tactical nuclear weapons in Ukraine to achieve his desired operational effect—freezing the front lines and halting Ukrainian counteroffensives. But the operational effect would need to outweigh the potentially very high costs of possible NATO retaliation.

▲ ASIE – OCÉANIE : Tests successifs de tirs de missiles balistiques par la Corée du Nord

Exercices nucléaires tactiques : la Corée du Nord menace-t-elle la sécurité de la région ?

Après une pause de plusieurs années, Pyongyang a repris ses tirs de missiles en 2022... Et pour la première fois effectivement depuis 2017, un missile sud-coréen a survolé le nord du Japon avant de s'abîmer dans l'océan Pacifique. Ces tirs, en plus des simulations, sont présentés par le régime nord-coréen comme la démonstration de sa capacité à transporter des armes nucléaires tactiques (de faible intensité), élargissant ainsi la panoplie de sa stratégie de dissuasion. Cette nouvelle démonstration de force doit être comprise comme la volonté de Pyongyang de rendre son arsenal plus crédible, et comme une réponse à un contexte politique et géopolitique particulier.

North Korea Tests Long-Range Strategic Cruise Missile

According to a KCNA report on Monday, the spate of missile launches from September 25 to October 9 were staged by "tactical nuclear operations units" of the KPA. Kim guided the missile launches, including one ballistic missile launched from "a silo under a reservoir" in the Taechon area in North Pyongan province on September 25, demonstrating its capabilities to invade the detection and interception efforts of South Korea-U.S. military assets... As the escalations on the Korean Peninsula increase with the North's nuclear and missile threats, more and more experts and politicians have raised the call for South Korea to also pursue nuclear capability, under the idea of matching "nuclear power to nuclear power."

"A Strong Military Warning:" Four Key Implications of North Korea's October 10 Missile Statement

The North Korean statement also revealed that the missile launched over Japan on October 4 to a range of about 4,600 km was a "new-type" IRBM. The associated photographs showed a missile with: 1) a different engine configuration and thrust-vector control (steering) system than the previously-tested Hwasong-12 IRBM, 2) a differently-shaped and possibly shorter nosecone or reentry vehicle, and 3) possibly a slightly longer second stage. That said, it currently is unclear whether the missile or its propulsion system are a modification of the Hwasong-12 or entirely new. Although the new-type missile flew farther than the previously longest-range Hwasong-12 flight of 3,700 km (already sufficient to hit US bases in Guam), the Hwasong-12 was assessed to be capable of 4,500 km, which does not add much in the way of new targets.

Allies Conduct Naval Defense Exercises Following North Korea Missile Launches

Last night, North Korea conducted another ballistic missile test, launching two short-range missiles. Two days ago, North Korea fired a ballistic missile over Japan... The U.S urges North Korea to cease this type of provocative action, he said. Such actions escalate military tensions, destabilize the region and harm efforts at peace and security. In response to this provocation, the USS Ronald Reagan Carrier Strike Group, joined by two Japanese navy destroyers and one South Korean destroyer, arrived yesterday in the Sea of Japan to conduct trilateral ballistic missile defense exercises, Ryder said.

▲ AFRIQUE : Le capitaine Traoré devient président de transition du Burkina Faso suite à un nouveau coup d'État

Burkina : Ibrahim Traoré président de la transition jusqu'en 2024
Le capitaine Ibrahim Traoré, qui a pris le pouvoir par la force il y a deux semaines, a été désigné vendredi président de transition jusqu'à l'élection présidentielle prévue en juillet 2024... Le capitaine Traoré avait assuré qu'il ne ferait qu'expédier « les affaires courantes » jusqu'à la désignation d'un nouveau président de transition civil ou militaire par des « assises nationales ». Mais depuis son coup d'État, il n'a cessé de bénéficier du soutien de la rue. Vendredi encore, plusieurs centaines de personnes ont manifesté près du centre de conférence où se tenaient les assises, en brandissant son portrait et en criant son nom, d'autres agitant des drapeaux russes, burkinabè et maliens. Dans plusieurs pays d'Afrique francophone, Moscou jouit d'un soutien populaire grandissant quand la France, ex-puissance coloniale, y est de plus en plus vilipendée, en particulier au Mali, pays voisin du Burkina également dirigé par des militaires putschistes depuis 2020.

Security priorities for Burkina Faso's new transition

There was almost no progress on security sector reform, and violent extremism in northern Burkina Faso continued. In Djibo in the Sahel region, violent extremists imposed a seven-month blockade and carried out attacks. A 26 September assault destroyed a convoy carrying supplies to the city, highlighting the government's inability to deal with the security and humanitarian situation. Decisions about the general reorganisation of the armed forces and their employment also deepened tensions and undermined the army's chain of command... The absence of a cohesive security sector has seriously undermined Burkina Faso's capacity to deal with the urgent problem of violent extremism. The country's new authorities must break from past practices that have fueled tensions and divisions in the army, police and other security structures.

Paris dans le brouillard burkinabè

Si la France s'était montrée disposée à soutenir Ouagadougou, c'est que le pays s'était accordé sur un calendrier de transition avec la Communauté économique des Etats de l'Afrique de l'Ouest (Cedeao). Le maintien par le nouvel homme fort du pays, le capitaine Ibrahim Traoré, de l'échéance négociée par Damiba, pourrait être de nature à faciliter les relations avec la Cedeao et, par ricochet, Paris... La position de Bruxelles et Paris est néanmoins délicate : un flottement du soutien de l'UE à Ouagadougou pourrait favoriser l'arrivée de puissances concurrentes, dont Moscou... Surtout, lors du coup d'Etat du 30 septembre, la France a fait l'objet d'attaques à Ouagadougou... Parmi les assaillants de la représentation française se trouvaient des militants pro-russes issus de la nébuleuse d'associations musulmanes d'obédience wahhabite cornaquée par le Mouvement sunnite burkinabè, dont le capitaine Traoré est un adepte.

Coup d'État au Burkina Faso : entre crise multiforme et jeux d'influence L'influence française est en déclin au niveau régional (sur les plans économique et militaire). L'image de la France est profondément dégradée. Le sentiment anti-français est latent. Ce rejet peut toutefois être instrumentalisé et se révéler un contre-feu dans certaines situations paroxystiques... Des manifestants s'en sont pris aux institutions françaises créant visiblement un rapport de force favorable au capitaine Traoré... À l'heure actuelle, nous ne savons pas si la Russie a joué un rôle dans le renversement du gouvernement Damiba ou si elle a seulement saisi l'opportunité du coup d'État et du rejet français pour apparaître comme une alternative crédible. La Russie ne joue pas un rôle structurant sur le plan géopolitique, mais sa perception si. Le nouvel homme fort du Burkina Faso a intégré la concurrence entre la France et la Russie à des fins tactiques : assoier son pouvoir.

▲ MOYEN-ORIENT : Le Liban et Israël s'accordent sur leur frontière maritime

Israel Debates the Lebanon Maritime Deal

Establishing a maritime boundary is a singular event given that Israel and Lebanon have remained in a state of war since 1948, with no agreement to delineate any of their shared borders since the 1949 Armistice Line. [...] Recent statements by Hassan Nasrallah mark the Hezbollah secretary-general's first-ever public approval of any deal with Israel [...]. Although both governments generally respect this line, they have never formally recognized it, and the boundary has witnessed frequent violations and military hostilities over the years, most notably the 2006 war that began with a Hezbollah incursion. The UN did not demarcate a maritime boundary, so Israel strung up a buoy line extending 3.1 miles into the sea [...]. Israeli forces have patrolled it ever since, calling this a necessary security measure that prevents Hezbollah from establishing line of sight for rocket/missile fire against Israel's northern coast.

Lebanon and Israel's Maritime Deal Suspends Them Between No War and No Peace

While this is far from a peace treaty between Lebanon and Israel, the agreement means that both countries now have vested economic interests in maintaining calm along their common border regions. This should bring an important sense of stability in a region marred by continued turbulence as well as in Lebanon, whose prospects remain uncertain. It will reduce the long-running threat of an outbreak of war between the two countries and, in time, may open the door to further political negotiations around land borders.

Biden congratulates Lapid on maritime border deal

"We have preserved Israel's security interests, we are on our way to a historic agreement," Yair Lapid's national security adviser says. Following Tuesday's announcement that Israel and Lebanon had reached an agreement on the maritime border deal, Israel's Security Cabinet convened at 11 a.m. on Wednesday morning to vote on the implementation of the deal. At the conclusion of the meeting, the Security Cabinet voted in favor of approving the deal[...]. Energy – particularly in the Eastern Mediterranean – should serve as the tool for cooperation, stability, security and prosperity, not for conflict," Biden said.
